Prosecution may call CJ's in-laws as witnesses

By Gil C. Calacangan and TJ Bugarin

THE PROSECUTION yesterday left open the possibility of calling two in-laws of Chief Justice Renato Corona as witnesses to rebut defense claims in his impeachment trial.

Asuncion was referring to Henry Flory Basas and her niece, Ana Basas, who have been involved in a spat with Corona's wife Gloria—also a niece of the ex—over the controversial sale of Defense fears Coronas would be ridiculed if they testify

By TJ Bugarin

CITING fears that their clients might be subjected to intense grilling and public ridicule, the defense panel yesterday said it might not call Chief Justice Renato Corona and his wife Gloria as the witness stand, after all.

Defense lawyers Theresita Salvador El and Rhea Pardo Gutierrez said that Corona and his wife Gloria, who have already been "trapped in public" by the impeachment trial, would rather risk a potential public backlash than be subjected to intense grilling and ridicule at the Senate impeachment trial.

The defense's latest move came amid calls yesterday by leaders of a

2 suspects fall in honor student's slay

By Michael R. Holman

HE WASN'T the valedictorian, but Rowell Cruz positively drew the most poignant applause during Recognition Day at Signal Village National High School in Taguig City yesterday.

"He was our graduating student who died on Tuesday," the voice said of Cruz, the honor student, who was shot dead by two men who pointed his cell phone and PlayStation Portable (PSP) gaming console outside his house.

Three days after the killing, Taguig police presented two suspects: Bobby Delgado, 25, and Arnold Taguig, 30.

The owner of the motorcycle used in the robbery had investigations to the two suspects, said Taguig police chief Antonio Lopez. Tomas Aguilera said, "We believe our case is strong. We have an eyewitness and we recovered from him the gun used in the incident," Aguilera said.

During the program, Cruz's sister Kristine tearfully received the certificate and medals commemorating her brother for finishing at the top of his section with a general average of 95.30. Cruz, 30, just 20 at the time of his death, would have graduated for honorable mention on Tuesday.

"He was such a smart brother. He had big dreams. He wanted to be a scientist but we could not afford it. He spent his mind for a computer-related course which would have been funded by a scholarship he got from IBM Foundation," she said the day after the program.

Cruz was never told that he was graduating with honors. "It's supposed to be a surprise. He's supposed to be told about it only today. I feel guilty that I did not tell him that he was the top of his section," said his classmate, Mylene Pallas.

Kristine recalled that Rowell, the youngest in a family of four, was a cheerful, energetic, quite tall for his age

Gang of 5 high school boys nabbed for robbery

Case investigator PO2 Jagantho the police said the suspects, whose ages range between 15 and 16 years old, were arrested after a man identified two of them as among the five who allegedly robbed him on Route 100 in the district, Barangay San Andres.

At a press conference, the police said the suspects were arrested after they reportedly robbed a man of P20,000 and a P10,000 on Thursday night. The police said the suspects were arrested after they reportedly robbed a man of P20,000 and a P10,000 on Thursday night. The police said the suspects were arrested after they reportedly

French cops kill 'Qaida militant,' end standoff

Busload of 10 among dozens dead in Syria

TOULOUSE, France—Muhammad Merah, a 23-year-old former garage mechanic who claimed responsibility for the brutal slayings of four men and three children, was shot dead on Thursday when security forces stormed the apartment where he had barricaded himself for more than 30 hours.

The death of Merah brings a violent end to a series of events that reshaped France, but also left swirling questions about government lapses in intelligence services, and whether they may have acted.

Merah, a Frenchman of Algerian descent who claimed this is al-Qaida, had apparently acted alone, not much in the leastly a factor in the final moments of a fierce firefight, said Francois Molon, the prosecutor who led the investigation into the killings. Merah was found dead on the ground after being shot from the apartment through a low window, still lying, according to the lawyer for the victim, Claude Levent, a 46-year-old man who was shot in the head, with two other men and an angry magazine nearby.

CHARGED: Merah (right), the suspect in the killing of three people, was shot dead in a police raid in Toulouse, France, on Thursday.

The authorities said they had hoped to make Merah show some information about his alleged contacts and his alleged path to Islamic radicalism. While the difficulty in getting Merah to talk was acknowledged, Merah, who had traveled to both Britain and Afghanistan, was well known to the French police and intelligence services.

Foreign Minister Jean-Marc Ayrault said French police believe the attack was planned for one night, possibly on Thursday evening. "I can understand that one night would be there was a target or not. We tried to bring clarity on this."

Molon and other officials seemed at pains to explain why Merah had failed to attract the attention of investigators earlier, especially before he killed his first four victims, including three children, at a Jewish school on Wednesday. "This act is not an isolated act, it is a sign of a process, a process of radicalization and recruitment by ideological motives," Molon said. "We need to look at the process, not at the act itself."

He also said on Wednesday that Merah was arrested some years ago in Afghanistan by the US police and turned over to the US military which transferred him to the French authorities. Merah also had been the US government's ally for the "same time," a US law enforcement official said on Thursday, speaking on the condition of anonymity because he did not want to be identified discussing national security matters. It is not clear whether the US authorities shared that information with their French counterparts. Asked why Merah had not been under closer scrutiny in France, Molon said that "these kinds" of French people lived in Afghanistan and Pakistan, explaining that France does not have the resources to monitor all of them.

Several sources reported approval, saying that only about 10 to 20 men with a similar profile lived in France. The French government's ally for the "same time," a US law en-

Opposition sources said there had been a night attack in a neighborhood in the northwest city of Hama, which has been a center of revolt. Opposition sources said at least 20 people had died in Hama attacks in the last 48 hours.

It is impossible to verify reports from Syria because authorities have denied access to independent journalists. Syria keeps the latest heavy weapons. Syria keeps the latest heavy weapons.

DOF expects credit ratings upgrade for PH

Purisima: 'Country is the most underrated in the world'

By Daniel S. Suarez

THE PHILIPPINES should expect an upgrade from credit ratings firms in the near future, given the country's improved economic prospects under the Aquino administration, the government's chief economic manager yesterday said.

"The Philippines is the most underrated country in the world," he told a forum organized by the Foreign Correspondents Association of the Philippines, referring to the country's credit standing with global debt watchers Standard & Poor's, Moody's Investors Service and Fitch Ratings, all of which rank the country's debt across several investment-grade levels.

Purisima—who is also the de facto head of the Aquino administration's economic team—expressed confidence that the credit watchers "would catch up with their ratings sooner rather than later," adding that the country's rating is, at present, "low levels below where it should be."

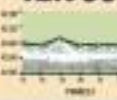

In particular, the Standard & Poor's

Phinma net profit plunged to P57M in '11 from P640M

PEBBLE Corp.'s net profit declined sharply last year as the global economy slumped, even as its steel production and automation increased.

Palmon posted a net profit of $17.5 million versus the $9.8 million bottom line the previous year, which however included a one-time gain from the sale of a prime property to one of its subsidiaries, the company declared to the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The non-recurring gain in 2008 amounted to $10m.1 million.

In its disclosure, Fluoride said a series of approvals and delays in the implementation of the power sector infrastructure projects weighed on the company's sales.

"In spite of these, the company maintained its leadership in the compressed roofing industry and is poised for a recovery in the government sector, implementation of its public-private partnership (PPP) programs and on the nation's stable backbone of the natural resources of 2011," the officials said.

Pharmco considered not to count vanillic acid allowed by the laws of its production unit, Olin Astoria Ltd., which incurred a net loss of $97.1 million.

The firm was attributed to its loyal prospects from clients as well as production and cost pressures as the company took on and completed numerous government contracts (GCR) work.

"Our future lies along continued initiatives to build stronger client relationships and improve our capabilities to control costs and manage," the company said.

The group also reported a lower equity in net earnings of property lost. Phoenix Properties lost $25 million from P&T, $ million in 2012 as the low-cost housing industry was heavily affected by the loan take-out tightening by state-controlled Home Development Mutual Fund in the US.

Sluggish exports pulled down current account in '11

By Michelle Y. Reyes

THE COUNTRY posted a lower surplus in its current account in 2011 as a result of the contraction in export earnings resulting from sluggish global demand.

Still, the surplus in the current account remained significant because remittances continued to be strong despite the problems now spoiling most labor markets abroad, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas reported.

Data from the BSP showed that the surplus in the current account—which covers cash flows from trade in goods and services—reached $7.1 billion last year, down by 4.7 percent from the $6.5 billion reported the previous year.

The decline in the surplus was driven largely by the 4.9 percent drop in exports to $47.27 billion.

But the impact of lower exports was partly offset by remittance inflows, which include money sent in by Filipinos working overseas. Current remittance grew by 6 percent to $7.6 billion.

Remittances accounted for nearly half year on the back of sustained global demand for Filipino workers.

Meanwhile, the BSP also reported that the country posted a lower surplus in its capital and financial account in 2011, as Filipinos outside placed more of their funds abroad and netted debt in foreign credits.

The outward move was partly offset by inflows in the form of foreign direct investments and foreign portfolio investments.

The surplus in the capital and financial account, which covers transactions in the form of portfolio and direct investments, reached $5.2 billion last year, down by 20 percent from the $7.4 billion of the previous year, BSP disclosed.

in the country's improving fiscal situation, its well-managed economy and the good governance drive of the administration in being the main drivers for the country's economic growth.

Improving debt ratings demonstrates how much society—both in government and private corporations—pays to borrow from overseas lenders. The Philippines relies heavily on the offshore debt market to cover its chronic budget deficits, and to the American dollar's soaring strength in recent years.

At present, the Philippines is rated by all major debt watchdogs as one member below investment grade. The higher level achieved by the country is a notch below investment grade during the Ramos administration.

Quality homes for modern Filipino's discerning taste

By Theresa S. Samsonigo

K (EN) A strong foothold in the Philippine real estate industry is no easy feat to achieve, especially with what the local sector had to go through during the Asian crisis in the late '90s, which saw a devastating slump that had almost driven property firms out of business.

So it is not the industry for more than two decades and is able to handle the challenges that come with such a complex business only (gives something about the ability and integrity of the developer).

And this can't be more true in the case of New San Jose Builders Inc. (NSJB) which has been thriving since 1996 to provide quality lifestyle choices for the discerning taste of the modern Filipino.

Innovative approach

A privately held real estate company, NSJB has been known for its innovative approach to real estate development by offering a wide array of choices and methods in creating quality homes in various locations.

NSJB comprises subsidiaries based in Metro Manila and also as a construction company in the states, New San Jose Builders has already become the partner of both the government and private sector in building communities for mass housing, schools, sustainable communities, prime residential developments, hospitals and lodges.

And it was because of these numerous and varied projects that the company had developed a "corporate posture of wanting to give every Filipino a decent, quality and value-based home they sincerely call their own."

Portfolio

"Over the years, NSJB has a portfolio of 10 vertical developments and two horizontal projects, each of which has its own unique strengths to look on, meant to cater to the needs and wants of specific markets.

Thus, the ability to select and execute projects at par with the other developments available in the market.

Current projects of New San Jose Builders include the Victoria Towers, which is located at the heart of Quezon City's entertainment district, Shoppes Center 1, which the company claims to have everything one needs in a lifestyle development, Victoria Station 2, that provides access to the game to game areas and recreation, Four Victoria which is the crown jewel of New San Jose developments and proud of its architectural design skills.

The company also has developments in Manila and Manila like the Victoria de Manila, which is located in one of the most business districts, Victoria de Manila, on the other hand, is located at the center of Manila and thus attracts many from an LRT station, while the one in Marikina de Manila 1, Victoria de Marikina, Victoria de Marikina, Victoria de Marikina, Victoria de Marikina and Victoria de Marikina 1H.

"These projects are strategic in location around Metro Manila and offer all what we believe are essential—location, convenience, a prime investment and being able to provide a healthy lifestyle—for the working class," says Francis adding that "these are the other projects that NSJB holds on."

Likewise, Francis reveals that the company adds that providing affordable-quality homes, at a premium for welfare and premium class family fits in each of its developments.

Accredited lifestyle

"Helping Filipino embrace an active lifestyle is an integral part of NSJB's vision. These are projects in two of our prime areas—Victoria de Manila 2 on East Avenue and Victoria Station 2, which both has a sports complex," Francis claims.

Victoria de Manila 2 is equipped with a two-storey indoor sports complex, an indoor swimming pool, a large building facilities, (tennis, basketball, swimming pool, fully

Meanwhile, Victoria Station 2 has two basketball courts, two basketball courts, two tennis courts, billiard and table tennis hall, activity square, swimming pool. The sports center's main unique feature, however, is the 50-meter Olympic-size swimming pool.

And these, according to Francis, are just some of the reasons homebuyers should make NSJB developments their top of the mind choice.

Good investment

"Real estate investment, especially with NSJB, are good investments. With our prime location, the lifestyle, convenience and security that we provide, one can be assured that value of the property will continue to appreciate," Francis claims.

And because NSJB has a strong commitment to the better control of the quality and speed of construction, and as a result, maintain price cash-up against with third party investors. "We also maintain NSJB to see only fresh to development more quickly, but to also offer housing into at more affordable prices."

"NSJB always keep on step-ahead by practicing the latest technology in building and construction, offering the most innovative financing terms and offering value share and beyond customer experience in the direct construction in the NSJB to some developments or a full sports complex beyond a simple gym," he explains.

"We will continue to strengthen our corporate and brand positioning, not only by advertising, but through a more aggressive PR effort, and will coordinate and will more vision about what we offer and what we are as a real estate developer," he concludes.

Duane, who began acting in 1960, talked passionately about "Quarant's" theme. "What the movie is about is a delinking of the myth of one's fatal air," stressed the actor whose home-ruling drama, "Lark," was recently canceled after a brief national tour and put down during production.

"The best art is not written a lifetime," he said. "We are in haste. It's about a body of people who, in this case, happen to be musicians and songwriters."

Young viewers speak up—for a change

By Alexander L. Thomas

WHILE OF the time, when it comes to "childlessness" intervention, it's the adult "experts" who have a lot to say on the subject, while the opinions of young women are generally ignored. They're "just kids," therefore they don't really know what's good or bad for them—that seems to be the little principle at work.

Last week, however, the National Council for Children's Television (NCCT), chaired by Mag Crow Hand, changed the conversation and debate in a key way by asking the "impulse" to stop talking for a while, and listen to a group of children from all over the country as they evaluated a number of shows from their youthful perspective.

Hard drive

Some of the adults present had a hard time getting used to the idea of shutting up and listening for a change—but, as discussed, the kids nevertheless made their points, and some of the adults present were surprised and even shocked by their arguments.

Yes, they were still occasionally "innocent" and more "solid" writing' ('we're just kids, we want more autonomy'). But, they were also sometimes insecure and presumptuous, far from the silly or no-nonsense opinions that some members of the GBC audience may have been expecting. ... If these kids are the future of the Internet, we have nothing to fear!

To be sure, some of the juvenile respondents came up with "politically correct" and even unimpassioned responses. But, the majority spoke from the mind and heart, and made us realize that there's as much work to be done on local TV by many of us.

child readily shows, if the industry is to serve its young viewership as it deserves to be responsibly sustained, informed and inspired.

In that regard, it was disturbing to realize that many good shows for kids are no longer being produced. In their place are more "pajamas" programs that crudely demean and exploit children, while laughing at the way we do things.

Conclusions

Many channels aren't even following the laws of the law, let alone its spirit, when it comes to good programming for children, so everybody needs to work much harder, because nothing less than the greatest shows is at stake.

The recent Salmon sponsored by the NECT is only the first step in effective industry wide reforms that will redound to the good of the country's millions of young viewers. It's something to note that the new board of trustees of the National Commission for Children's Television made up of well-regarded, truly grassroots leaders and dairy whose boards have been proven to be in the right place (Shari May Gray Hurd, of San Francisco Consulting, Inc. chairs Lin Thayer, producer Carla's Place and Dr. Luis R. Contreras).

beliefs, the task assigned to the NCCY is so huge and difficult that only the best scientists and leaders can affect the major changes needed. But, if it maintains its focus on what our young citizens need and desire, and keeps listening to their opinions in that regard, it has a better chance of moving in where many others have failed.

Growing pains on 'Sarah G. Live'

By Maria E. Torre

THE FIRST episode of Sarah Geronimo's new TV show, "Sarah G. Live," began auspiciously with an all-out, shoving production number that showcased the popular artist's singing and dancing skills. And then—well, her dance troupe didn't perform.

Later, however, for the singer, "Sarah G. Live" is about to become a battle with her own network's producers. Geronimo, an 80-year-old, award-winning singer, has been in the music business for over 40 years. She's been on the radio for over 40 years. She's been on the radio for over 40 years. She's been on the radio for over 40 years.

GERONIMO: Old habits—and fan preferences—die hard.

But the audience reaction was a mixed bag. Some were praising her already vibrant set in a new light, as a "vibrant young-old performer."

Others, however, were criticizing her performance. Some were criticizing her performance. Some were criticizing her performance. Some were criticizing her performance. Some were criticizing her performance.

Others, however, were praising her performance. Some were praising her performance. Some were praising her performance. Some were praising her performance. Some were praising her performance.

"We experienced it as being young and contemporary, and that's just because of her charisma. Some who like to go by with superficial appearances rather than real substance and insight."

There's no doubt that Sarah is trying to fill in those blanks, but she's not quite there yet. One of her network's producers is also a fan of her old-fashioned approach to country in the first 10 minutes of her show, she was made to do not just country but also contemporary music, and she was off to "TV."

Spotlight

Unfortunately enough, in her third show, she wasn't made to do any actual country music. She was supposed to be mostly reacting to the music of other pop singers. That may have taken the spotlight away from her, but she's still a country singer.

She's still a country singer. She's still a country singer. She's still a country singer. She's still a country singer. She's still a country singer.

There were, in other words, no actual country songs. The show was so-so, and when Sarah was finally able to dance to country with an all-star band—she performed better than she did.

The show does have what it does in "Sarah G. Live." Sarah's music and performance by way of her all-star band—she performed better than she did.

That was, it will become a show that is actually a country show for the "Sarah G. Live" show.
